Centers for Early Childhood Education and Care “Nintei Kodomo-en”

What kind of place is a center for early childhood education and care?

A center for early childhood education and care (“Nintei Kodomo-en”) is a childcare support facility that combines the advantages of kindergartens and day care centers as well as provides integrated services for early childhood education and childcare. Childcare fees are determined according to the residential tax amount of each household. *Childcare fees for children in 3 year-old classes or older are free of charge.

3 Key Points

- ① Regardless of the employment status of the parents, any child between the ages of three and five years old may receive both education and childcare.
- ② Even when the employment status of the parents changes, such as when parents stop working, their children may continue using the same center they are used to.
- ③ Since child-rearing support services are available, even families whose children do not attend the centers can use child-rearing consultation services and participate in events such as interactive gatherings for parents and children.

*For further details about temporary care, see P43.

*Eligible ages and opening hours vary by center. For further details, see the List of Centers for Early Childhood Education and Care. (P18-24)

3 ways to prevent Tooth Decay

1. Getting your child accustomed to brushing their teeth

Most babies aged around 3 or younger old resist having their teeth brushed. Let's brush their teeth gently and quickly, creating a fun atmosphere such as by singing a song, to get them accustomed to it.

2. Teaching your child healthy eating habits

Let's give your child healthy eating habits such as by having the same number of meals every day. Especially when you have difficulties brushing their teeth, please be careful not to feed them more often than they need.

3. Getting your child regular dental checkups

When your baby's teeth start to appear, let's find a family dentist and have regular dental checkups a couple of times a year. Regular fluoride treatment is effective for tooth decay prevention.

Effects of fluoride treatment

- It builds strong teeth and prevents cavities.
- It slows the growth of cavities.

SIDS (Sudden Infant Death Syndrome)

SIDS is an illness in which a baby without any medical history suddenly passes away without any warning signs, differing from accidental death such as suffocation. There have not been specific precautions to prevent SIDS, but some data show that the following three measures are effective to reduce the risk of SIDS.

●To reduce the risk of SIDS

- ① Have your baby sleep on their back until they turn 1 year old.
- ② Try to breast-feed your baby as much as possible.
- ③ Have everyone in the family quit smoking.

※Causes of death of babies during sleep includes Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS), as well as accidents due to suffocation and other causes.

●To prevent suffocation accidents

- ① Let the baby lay down in a crib and always raise the barrier.
- ② It's better to use firm mattress and pillow, as well as a light blanket.
- ③ Do not place anything that may cover the baby's mouth, nose, or wrap around their neck.

A midwife will provide care to mothers with newborn babies who can't get enough support with household chores or baby care from their family and who therefore feel very tired, or anxious about raising children.
